● Nu'uauu Pali State Wayside (Pali Lookout)

3,000 feet above the coastline is the site of the battle of Nu'uauu, where in 1795 King Kamehameha I united O'ahu with the rest of the southern Hawaiian Islands.

● Waimea Valley

Meander through 1,800 acres of rainforests and botanical gardens to discover rich culture and history. Nestled within the historic ahupua'a (traditional land division) system, this valley was once a vibrant Native Hawaiian village.

● Chinatown Historic District

One of the oldest Chinatowns in the United States, Honolulu's historic Chinatown is the heart of O'ahu's downtown culinary and art scene. Stroll through open air markets and fragrant lei stands, all coexisting with trendy bars and restaurants.

● Hanauma Bay Nature Preserve

Sheltered in the curved bay of a breached volcanic crater, this marine conservatory is famous for its responsible snorkeling. Advanced reservations are required for out-of-state visitors. Before admission, the pre-entry video and fee support preservation efforts. Please protect the fragile ecosystem by avoiding stepping on living coral.

● Kawaiaha'o Church

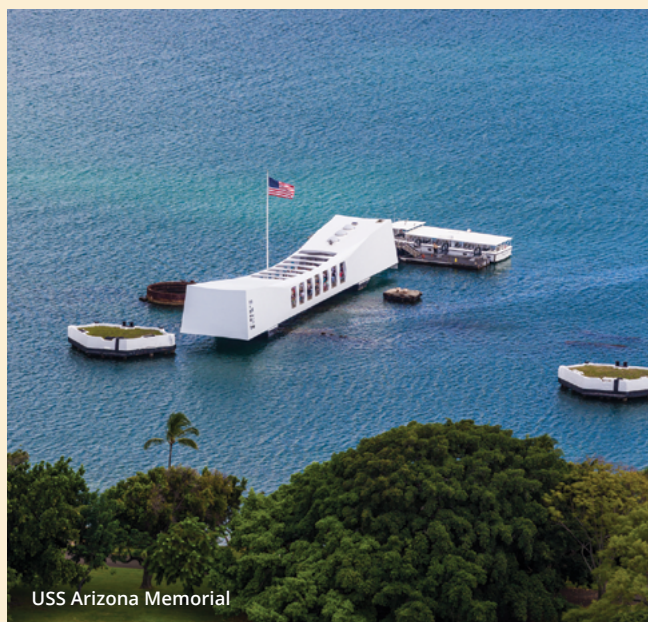

Take a self-guided walking tour of the oldest Christian church on O'ahu, built out of 14,000 coral slabs and dedicated in 1842 at the order of Kuhina Nui Ka'ahumanu.

● Duke Paoa Kahanamoku Memorial Statue

Pay tribute to Hawai'i's first Olympian, "the father of modern surfing." On O'ahu, experience surfing by watching the pros ride the North Shore's massive swells or by riding yourself on gentler waves in Waikiki on the South Shore.
